

Abstract of the Disclosure

A tire air pressure monitoring device includes a sensor which detects a physical quantity relating to tire air pressure, and a transmitter which sends signals detected by the sensor. The sensor is a sound pressure level sensor which detects a sound pressure level inside a tire cavity filled with air. The transmitter is enabled to send the signals only when the sound pressure level detected by the sound pressure level sensor is changed.